Backtracking Sin

Working on my sermon for last Sunday morning, I made a hitherto unnoticed observation:

- Cherubim were placed at the Garden of Eden at the East where the entrance was to prevent anyone from entering to partake of the tree of life. Therefore, to approach the tree of life and God, one had to make a westward progression beyond cherubim.
- When Joshua and Israel entered the land of Canaan, they did so from the east to a westward progression. Solomon's temple was situated the same way where one had to come from the east and make a westward progression.
- When we enter Glendale Road, we do so making a westward progression from the east as well—the altar (Lord's table) being at the western-most part of the church just as the ark of the covenant was. There, we commune with our Savior acting out and anticipating the grand occasion when we can commune with Him in His glorious kingdom in actuality.
- Mostly, God's people have always walked back Adam and Eve's path of expulsion to approach God and have communion with Him. However, when Jesus died were we only then able to finish the progression and not be hindered by cherubim. Jesus opened the path to us that had been closed by sin.

This last Sunday morning, we studied how Christ as our sacrifice was in the outer court of the temple. This outer court represented, to the Jews, the world in its fallen corruption and futility. With Christ sacrificed there, and we immersed into Him, He progresses now to the holy place, or sanctuary, of the temple to minister for us there not as a priest whose ministry ends, but an everlasting priest approaching and, thereby, taking us with Him to the very presence of God. We hope you can be with us this coming Sunday!

WORSHIP Ernie Bailey

No single issue has troubled the Churches of Christ or the wider Christian world more in the past few decades than what constitutes Biblical corporate worship. Basically, we are talking about the Sunday morning assembly. Although we have a number of books on various aspects of worship, the following two might be of interest to those wishing to do more in-depth reading:

What The Bible Says About Worship by Lynn Hieronymous. (College Press, Joplin, MO, 1984). College Press is the publishing arm of the Conservative or Independent Christian Church (as opposed to the liberal Disciples of Christ). Book # is 264/Hie/1984.

Ancient Christian Worship by Andrew McGowan (Baker Academic Pres, 2014). Baker Book House of Grand Rapids is a respected conservative publisher of academic works in the field of religion/theology. Book # is 264/McG/2014.
